The Association of English Singers & Speakers

The Association of English Singers & Speakers

Founded in 1913

*“to encourage the communication of English words,
in singing and speech,
with clarity, understanding and imagination.”*

Chairman: Graham Trew MVO

Association of English Singers & Speakers
Charitable Status No. 1106279

The Association of English Singers and Speakers was formed in 1913 by the eminent laryngologist , Dr W.A. Aikin, to further study the principles of phonology as expounded in his book, 'The Voice'. This was an all-male society of well-known singers and teachers who met regularly to dine and discuss matters of vocal and professional interest. Two of the original members were Harry Plunket Greene, a singer famed for his English oratorio interpretations, and William Shakespeare, a leading singing teacher at the Royal Academy of Music.

During the 1920s the Society initiated publication of 'Fifty Modern English Songs', the first ever collection of songs by contemporary British composers. (The volume is available, as part of 'A Heritage of Twentieth Century British Song', published by Boosey & Hawkes.) Sir Percy Buck and Sir Henry Wood, among others, served as Presidents, and after the war the AESS opened its doors to include the speech and drama professions. In 1969 women were at last admitted to membership!

The AESS Today:

1989 saw the AESS Constitution revised. Its purpose redefined as being 'to encourage communication of English words in speech and song with clarity, understanding and imagination'. The AESS has now achieved charitable status.

In 1982 the then chairman, Catherine Lambert, inaugurated the AESS English Song Prize that is still an annual event. It is the only vocal competition that combines a 'themed' recital of English Song, poetry and spoken introductions. From 1999 – 2002 the competition was generously sponsored by the Concordia Foundation, founded by the international Soprano, Gillian Humphreys. In 2003 the distinguished actress and singer, Patricia Routledge, one of our honorary presidents, graciously enquired if she could be of any assistance. Miss Routledge generously agreed to sponsor the Song Prize until 2012.

In 2003 the AESS and the British and International Federation of Festivals began the National Junior English Song Competition. The prizes were funded from a masterclass given at the Wigmore Hall by Thomas Hampson, the distinguished American baritone. Mr Hampson continued his generous support for a restructured Junior Recital Competition run solely by the AESS, the first final being held in London in 2006. In 2007 the name of the competition was changed to 'The Catherine Lambert Junior Recital Prize' as Catherine generously offered sponsorship until 2011. At the same time Coral Gould offered to fund a third prize for the competition.

Some time ago, at the instigation of John Bishop, the owner of Thames Publishing, the AESS began a ten volume series entitled 'A Century of English Song'. The first seven volumes, published by Thames, are now available from music shops and the AESS. Three volumes remain to be issued. We would welcome any help from publishers or possible sponsors, to complete the series

The AESS organises many events each year. Artists who have recently given their time to promote the educational aims of the Association have included Joy Mammen, Julia McKenzie, Mary Hammond, Sir Thomas Allen, Andrew Motion, Graham Trew, Gabriel Woolf, Rosamund Shelley, Jonathan Miller, Sarah Walker, Richard Jackson, Graham Johnson, Stephen Varcoe, Robert Ponsoby, Norman Lebrecht, Adele Leigh, Lord Smith, Richard Suart and James Bowman.
